DSAC STRATEGIC PLANNING

By Jermina Kaka

Polokwane: The department of included in the plan. “For the department of Sport, Arts and Culture held a Strategic planning session to map a way forward for 2017/18. The intention was to discuss and finalise both operational and the Annual Performance Plan, furthermore ensuring that they are aligned with budget allocations. During the Strategic planning session the acting Chief Director Corporate Services Fhumu Maguga encouraged maximum participation and emphasised the importance of strategic planning. “This session is key in finalising the APP and is regarded as a comprehensive and systematic management tool designed to help the department in assessing the current environment, anticipate and respond appropriately to changes in the environment, preparing for the forthcoming financial year” said Maguga.

“Let’s do things the right way as the Department of Sport, Arts and Culture. As the custodian of Sport, Arts and Culture in the province, we need a plan that will be elaborative on how the programmes will be implemented and their impact thereof. We need a plan that will highlight the commitment to the organization’s mission and objectives for achieving that mission.

Strategic planning is about influencing the future rather than simply preparing or adapting to it. The focus is on aligning organizational resources to bridge the gap between present conditions and the envisioned future. While it is important to balance the vision of community with available resources, the resources available should not inhibit the vision. available can be tied to the future goals.

As much as the MEC for Sport, Arts and Culture, Onicca Moloi appreciated the efforts taken by management in consolidating the APP, but she raised issues of provincial importance in terms of implementing sport, arts and culture programmes that are not
